A letter is not always the right answer – All information provided should be in the format that the individual requires: Easy-read, audio, braille, large print, right colour paper and video. And when any request is made, this should be recorded and acted upon.

2

Do not make assumptions, not everyone is the same – does your approach or message still make sense to those who communicate differently?

Verbal communications – when starting a face to face conversation or on the phone always start with

“hello my name is ...”
talk slowly and clearly

Accessibility & Communication

TOP 10 TIPS

Don't put words in my mouth, don't finish sentences for me.

If I am struggling to find a word or talking slowly, be patient and let me finish – I might take longer but I will get there. If you are not sure, please ask me.

4

Promote alternative formats: publicise and encourage people to use all of the alternative formats available

5

All council departments need to understand and meet the needs of disabled people. People with disabilities are part of the general public – It is not only specialist disability services that have to work in an inclusive way – we all do!

8

6 See the person not the disability – physically hearing someone and listening to what they are saying are different: listen to understand.

Online is not right for everyone:

electronic resources are great for those who can afford, and understand computers. But for some this is not something they can access – a reliance on this can mean people are missing out.
